This summer will mark the greatest concentration of men and equipment at Grayling as all three state Divisions will have their units and companies swelled by recruits to near their peak strength. Also heavy tanks and other rolling stock in the way of trucks, weapon carriers and jeeps will reach a new top figure.

Training will progress through unit assault problems and a division-wide defense operation as all Illinois units will move into the rolling hills for a two-night bivouac.

Field training here will not be limited to the Hanson State Military Reserve. Although Michigan's Air National Guard units with the exception of one are all in Federal Service, more than 1,700 officers and airmen of Ohio's 121st Fighter Wing will be at MacNamara Air Base from July 7 to 21st. ## Socialism By Indirection

Oscar Ewing, the Federal Security Administrator, has long been one of the strongest advocates of the compulsory health insurance plan which is periodically recommended by the Administrator.

A short time ago, while testifying before the House Appropriations Committee, Mr. Ewing was asked this question: "How do you feel about the people's attitude toward compulsory health insurance?" Mr. Ewing replied: "I do not think a majority is for it right now."

In all probability Mr. Ewing greatly understated the situation. Literally thousands of national, regional, and local organizations of every conceivable nature have gone on record against compulsory health insurance. In that list are the largest and best known organizations representing farmers, lawyers, club women, and other groups. These people are not opposed to better medical care—to the contrary, they are all for improving it as rapidly as possible. But they are convinced that compulsory health insurance, which might very well be simply a prelude to socialized medicine on the British model, would not produce it, and would in all probability result in a general decline of medical standards.

There is small chance of the compulsory health insurance bill passing Congress now. The greatest danger is that a start in that direction may be made by evasion and by indirection. As an example, it is being urged that the national health service's activities be greatly enlarged. Some expansion may be necessary—but anyone familiar with political strategy will realize that the advocates of socialized medicine will get right on this bandwagon and whoop it along.

The point is that we must stop any movement which, no matter how innocuous it may seem on the surface, would in any way subject the doctor to the bureaucrat.

Where Have You Been all its Life?

THIS ad is addressed to the fellow known as "the man on the street."

From that vantage point, you must have noticed that a lot of folks are driving 1951 Buicks.

You must have noted that you can spot one of these beauties—by its sparkling forefront—its gleaming fender ports—(three for the SPECIAL and SUPER, four for the ROADMASTER)—and by its fluent grace of lines and contours.

You've probably noticed, also, that these Buicks give a good account of themselves in traffic—ease to a gentle stop—get away to a nimble start when the light says, "Go."

You may even have noticed that these cars have a level-gaited stride that traces, as we've said before, to the fact that each wheel rides beneath its own coil spring.

But what we'd like to know is—when are you going to try one?

Two in HENRY J. TAYLOR, ABC Network, every Monday evening

It's about time you climbed in the driver's seat.

It's about time that you sensed for yourself the thrill that comes from feeling your shoulders sink back in the cushions, when your toe gives the gas treadle a gentle nudge.

It's about time for you to be on the receiving end of those admiring glances which are the due of folks smart enough to pick the smart buy of the year.

What's holding you back? It can't be prices—for as you can see for yourself, you can own a SPECIAL for less than the price of some sixes—and SUPERS or ROADMASTERS are just as smart a buy in their fields.

So why not end the suspense? The welcome mat is out at our show room. We hope to greet you soon.

Michigan Mirror

Politics in Michigan also is on vacation. Some stirrings are evident, but from all appearances the summer siesta is here.

Most activity stems from the G. O. P. state central committee where politicians are trying to create a more tightly knit organization—such as has been definitely lacking in the last two elections.

The new 18½-year-old draft has caused the greatest furor in the state the last few weeks. Despite assurance that "it will be months or even years" before any men under 18 are called, eligible men are reluctant to enter colleges as employers are to hire them until the new law has been tested.

Reports in the college draft deferment tests show that some two thirds were above the passing mark of 70. Seventy doesn't mean deferment for sure...this phase of elective service is as confused as any other.

Michigan's first draft call for doctors has been chopped from 67 to 41. The medics will get the nod July 26. The number cut because "it was impossible to recruit 67".

Senator Moody already has drawn fire. Discussing the controls program in a Washington news letter, Republican Rep. Shaker said, "A publicity minded freshman attracted some attention recently by soliciting the advice of Bernard Baruch on the subject of inflation". Moody is not being ignored by the G. O. P.

Meanwhile Michigan Republicans have opened a campaign to present a united front against more federal consumer taxes. In telegrams sent to several congressmen Owen J. Cleary, chairman of the state central committee, suggested a solid bloc to oppose further taxes on income, gasoline, cigarettes, automobiles and other items.

Not missing an opportunity to blast the governor, Cleary said, "While Gov. Williams, as a Democrat, says he is opposed to consumer taxes, he hasn't raised his voice about the Democratic plans in Washington to grab millions of dollars more from Michigan people...the federal government is bleeding Michigan".

Gov. Williams is still promoting the St. Lawrence Seaway project to open Atlantic shipping to the midwest. He and other backers of the $18,000,000 project did their best to sell the project to Missouri valley representative at a meeting of 15 inland governors. Result? Nothing as yet.

While the C. I. O. is working to get a referendum on the recent 1½ cent per gallon gasoline tax rise, the Good Roads Federation has been assured that opponents of the tax will be stymied in any efforts to invalidate or repeal the levy.

John J. Jacobi, general counsel of the Wayne county road commission, says the "gas tax increase is not subject to a referendum as the state constitution exempts appropriations for state institutions from a referendum."

Will there be inflation or deflation this summer? Economists say it depends on Russia and whether she cools down her war plans. But does it HAVE to be one or the other? There was a time....

A safety program has been started to reduce the number of small plant accidents. There are 22.5 accidents for every million man hours in small organizations.

SHORT STORY

Jackie's Best World

By Richard Hill Williford

THE DAY BEFORE Darling's three-ring circus, largest to ever visit New England, came to Dexter, Silas Ledbetter called his 12-year-old son in from the barn and said:

"Look here, Jackie, you've been a pretty good boy this summer. Guess you deserve bein' on hand with the other boys at that circus when it gets here tomorrow."

The Ledbetters were poor as church mice, and Jackie hadn't dared even let himself think his pop would let him attend the circus. Consequently, his round blue eyes grew even rounder.

Old Silas grinned and swallowed a lump in his throat. He dug down into his pocket and brought out a shiny, new silver half-dollar.

Jackie carefully placed the half-dollar in a pocket of his tattered overalls, pulled his straw hat well over his ruddy face, puckered up his lips and began to whistle. He whistled all that afternoon and was still whistling when he came in from the lower lot for supper.

Once upstairs, Jackie carefully took off his shirt and then felt in the pocket of his overalls for the half-dollar. He'd better sleep with it under his pillow, he reasoned, like he'd read about folks doing.

It was right then that Jackie's heart sank, right then that the world turned black and there was a horrible, terrifying, empty feeling in the pit of his stomach. The half-dollar was gone!

Jackie wanted to cry, but he was too much of a man for that. He searched through the other pocket very carefully, and then looked in his shoes, and under the bed and about everywhere that the half-dollar might have been. But it was gone, completely vanished.

And so Jackie, his heart aching with misery, crawled into bed. And then — he couldn't help it—he cried. But all the time he kept telling himself he was a man now and he'd better stop crying before mom came up to tuck him in and make him good night.

If mom found him crying she'd feel bad and probably cry, too. And Jackie didn't want that to happen.

HE COULDN'T, he decided, even let mom know that he had lost the half-dollar. Or pop either. That wouldn't be fair. He'd just go off by himself tomorrow afternoon and make them think he was at the circus all the time. He wouldn't want them to know for anything.

There wasn't any one in the world but a better pop and me — an he.

Jackie carefully placed the half-dollar in a pocket of his tattered overalls.

Jackie fought to keep back the tears. He didn't wait long after breakfast and set out with his pitchfork over his shoulder and a whistle on his lips.

Once out of sight of the house, the whistle died. The ache and misery in his heart just wouldn't let it go on. Still, he was going to see the parade anyway, and pop and mom would think he was going to the circus. It was comforting to know that pop and mom were happy.

Jackie reached the lower lot and began to shake out the hay as pop had asked him to do. He couldn't loaf on the job, he told himself, because if he did pop wouldn't think him very grateful for the half-dollar.

Jackie turned the hay in one windrow and started on the next. But all the while his heart fairly sobbed with misery. And then abruptly that same heart almost ceased to beat. Jackie stared and stared at something round and shiny that lay in the stubbles under the forkful of hay he'd just picked up. After a long time, it seemed, his heart began to thump again. He felt goose pimples breaking out all over his body. He wanted to cry and shout and do all sorts of things.

And then Jackie remembered that he'd been working here on the afternoon before, and the half-dollar must have slipped out of his pocket. He picked up the coin, squeezed it lovingly and, holding it tightly in his clenched fist, went to shaking out the hay again. The best mom and the best pop in the world, he told himself, joyfully.

The Cow That Can't "Run Dry"

Sandy Johnson showed me his Jersey cows last week. It was a warm day and they were all under the trees near a watering trough.

And darned if one cow wasn't pumping water into the trough! It's a fact—she'd raise the pump handle with her nose, and use her throat to push it down again.

"That's Mabel," Sandy explained as she moved away. "Sometimes they drink that trough dry, and she's learned how to fill it again. But she doesn't know her own strength—turns the place into a swamp if we don't watch her."

From where I sit, Mabel isn't the only one who sometimes doesn't know where to stop. For instance, people often carry personal opinions too far—like the person who wants everyone to accept his choice of political parties, or ball players...or beverages. I prefer a glass of beer with my meals. I know that a lot of other people prefer milk. But nobody ought to insist on "herding" other around to his way of thinking.
